Not illustrated. 1829 Excerpt: ...to obtain an honest livelihood. The whole number of children, of both sexes, that have been received by the society, amounts to upwards of 1 200; among whom were many, old in iniquity, though young in years. The "Reform" is a probationary building, in which children who have actually commenced a criminal career are first placed, until they appear to be sufficiently amended for removal to the manufactory. In the latter, letter-press and copper-plate printing, book-binding, shoemaking, tailors' work, rope-making, twine-spinning, &c. are the regular employments. The Refuge for the Destitute, Hackney Road and Hoxton. The object of this society is to provide a place of refuge for persons discharged from prison or the hulks, or for unfortunate and deserted females, and other destitute persons, who, from loss of character or extreme indigence, cannot procure an immediate maintenance, though willing to make the requisite exertions. It was commenced in 1805, by the Rev. Dr. Grindlay, and its utility soon obtained for it the public notice and support. It appears by the returns, that 1600 persons have been assisted by means of this institution since its commencement, and 120 are now inmates. Royal Humane Society, Bridge Street, Blackfriars. Among the singularly benevolent institutions which have within a few years arisen in the metropolis, is this society, commencing its operations where all others leave the objects of their care. Since its first establishment, in 1774, more than 5200 individuals have been restored to animation from apparent death, (by drowning, &c.) and rewards have been distributed to 21,000 persons for risking their lives to preserve others. The Receiving-house in HydePark is fitted with an unrivalled apparatus, for employing ever...
